Houck Veteran Roof Repair

The DCD special projects team, led by DCD Executive Director, Carl Smith, worked on a home for an elderly veteran from Houck on May 21, 2018. The DCD Special Projects team repaired and re-shingled the veteran’s roof in less than a day. After arriving, the team immediately started taking shingles onto the roof and split up into small teams covering different areas of the roof. Within a few hours, they had re-shingled the entire roof and was ready to move on to a new project.

The veteran lives with his daughter and a grandson. The grandson will be graduating from college in Phoenix soon. Congratulations to the DCD Team for a job well done!
Thankful for hard work and dedication of DCD's Special Projects Team!

From start to finish..
On May 22, 2018, the DCD special projects team began the Spencer Valley project to help a couple and their three adoptive kids. The adoptive kids are siblings and the foster care system had split them apart. When the couple adopted the first one and found out about what happened with the siblings, the couple began working to get them all back together. Recently, they finally managed to get them reunited and are working on this hogan as a permanent home for them. This project is moving along quickly as the team works hard to get the project completed within a few weeks. The team started by setting the foundation (shown in the image above and below). The team is currently working on the framing of the walls and roof of the hogan (shown on page 4).
A young woman from the Naschitti community, who went through a severe illness that required multiple treatments and surgery resulting in her becoming physically disabled, had reached out for help through multiple organizations to get a home built for herself. After many months of searching for help and continuously getting rejected, she grew frustrated and thought that no one would ever help her. Then she found out about the Community Home Repair projects from the Navajo Nation Office of the President/Vice-President and wrote a personal letter to the Navajo Nation President, still unsure of what would happen. She got a positive response from the President who called on the DCD Special Projects team to help with the home construction.

While observing the digging of the foundation trench, the young woman's father remarked, “It’s hard to believe it’s really going to happen until the men and equipment come out and they start working. There are people who say bad things about the administration but this shows that he [President Russell Begaye] isn’t just all talk. He actually is making a difference”. The DCD special projects team’s work progresses every week. It started with planning out the layout of the home to pouring the foundation and getting the floor installed with sheathing. Now the walls are set in place and the outer walls covered in sheathing and home wrap, a weather-resistant barrier to protect the home. The DCD’s Special Projects team will next begin installing the roof trusses of the house and they hope to get the home fully constructed in the next several weeks.
Red Rock community receives $1.6 million from the 23rd Navajo Nation Council for a new senior citizen center

Council Delegate Seth Damon (Bááháálí, Chichiltah, Manuelito, Tsé Lichíí’, Rock Springs, Tsayatoh), Council Delegate Tom Chee (Shiprock), and President Russell Begaye had the honor of presenting $1.6 million in funding to the Tsé Lichíí’ Chapter, also known as the Red Rock Chapter, to assist in constructing a new senior citizen center for local elderly people.

NPD WELCOMES GRADUATE OFFICERS FROM CLASS 52D

Navajo Division of Public Safety will welcome 12 new police officers to the ranks of the Navajo Police Department (NPD) on Friday, June 22.

The officers will graduate from the 52nd Navajo Police Training Academy (NPTA) class and be sworn in at a ceremony to be held at the Wildcat Den in Chinle, AZ. Chief of Police Phillip Francisco said this will be the first academy class to graduate from the NPTA in more than 10 years. The NPTA is the only police academy within the Navajo Nation.

WASHINGTON, DC — The Navajo Nation wants to become the first tribe with the authority to review, approve and manage its own leases, business agreements and rights-of-way for energy development.

During a June 7 meeting in Albuquerque, Navajo leaders proposed a recommendation to the Royalty Policy Committee that seeks to clarify wording in the Indian Energy Development and Self-Determination Act of 2005 (IEDSDA).

One hundred and 50 years ago, leaders from the United States and the Navajo Nation etched their signatures on a treaty that reunited the Navajo people with their homeland in the desert Southwest.

Written on paper torn from an Army ledger book, the Treaty of 1868 ended the forced exile of the Navajo people and their incarceration at Bosque Redondo, a camp at New Mexico’s Fort Sumner where more than 10,000 Navajo were interned.

Where The Babies Are Booming

Birth Rates Vary From State to State

C Peter Borsella and Luke T. Rogers | September 2017

One more birth means one more person. Therefore, that births would be one of the primary drivers of U.S. population growth seems to be a deceptively simple conclusion. However, why, how, and where births contribute to the U.S. population growth varies from state to state.

There were almost 4 million births between July 1, 2014, and June 30, 2015, according to U.S. Census Bureau population estimates. The map below shows how many births there were in each state relative to their total population. The top five states were: Utah, Alaska, North Dakota, Texas and South Dakota. While those states account for only 10 percent of the nation’s population, 12 percent of the births occurred there.

The Young Make More Babies

A younger population usually means proportionally more births. According to the National Center for Health Statistics, in 2014 women in their twenties gave birth to almost 20 percent more children than women in their 30s, 40s and 50s combined. Utah has the lowest median age of all the states (30.7) and, with the exception of South Dakota, our top five high-birth states are also among the top five youngest. The District of Columbia had the third-lowest median age of 33.8 and was just behind South Dakota with the sixth-highest number of births relative to population.

The age pyramid below shows how large Utah’s 20-29 age group is.

Fourth of July

The Beginning of Independence

The Declaration of Independence was approved on July 4, 1776, by the Second Continental Congress leading 13 colonies to gain independence. This holiday of freedom is celebrated with various festivities that include fireworks, parades, concerts, and time with family. There were 55 signatures to the Declaration of Independence and among them a committee of 5 (Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Roger Sherman, and Robert R. Livingston) drafted the declaration.
