With the nights becoming colder and rain and snow making an early October appearance, a family living in Sawmill is in desperate need of shelter. The family of 12 is currently living in 4 tents several miles from the highway amid the ponderosa pines in Sawmill, Arizona. The DCD Special Projects Team led by Mr. Carl Smith, DCD Executive Director, is doing all they can to build a home for the family before the winter comes.
The family of 12 includes a 4-month old baby, an expectant mother, two elderly, and a veteran and they had been living in the area since the spring after they were evicted from the NHA housing in Ft. Defiance. The family tried to find affordable housing in the area but could not find anything. The available rental locations were asking for prices from $700 to $1,500 a month.

The mother had received a homesite lease in Sawmill, but had not built on it. With nowhere else to go, the family moved to that location and set up a temporary shelter in a tent while others slept in vehicles. They cooked on an outdoor stove and many of their possessions were out in the open or hanging from tree branches. The father had been working in Salt Lake City, Utah, but he quit his job and returned to help his family.
The family is currently living in four tents and had started digging a trench for a house. However, the family was depending on the income of the mother and although she was able to afford some housing materials with each paycheck, the going was slow.
Since the family has a 4-month old baby and two elderly individuals, with the coming winter, their plight became urgent. The family's situation caught the attention of the Navajo Nation President's Office and DCD Executive Director, Carl Smith. The DCD Team mobilized quickly and have now completed digging trenches for the foundation, pouring concrete for the footings and started working on the foundation walls.

The DCD Team has also provided several loads of firewood for the family over two days so they can have a way to keep warm. The father and the older males decided to stay at the homesite with their possessions while the rest of the family was moved to a temporary shelter at the Sawmill Chapter House. The family has been extremely appreciative of all the help they have been getting.
The Littlewater Chapter of the Navajo Nation and Continental Divide Electric Co-op (CDEC) are pleased to announce the completion of the Littlewater Chapter/White Ridge Power Line Project to provide electricity to 30 families.

“This is a lifetime historical event for our community,” Chapter Manager Genevieve Castillo said. “I almost gave up on the project so many times. You really have to have your heart into it to make something like this work.”

Castillo, who has been the chapter manager since 2008, said obtaining the necessary rights-of-way to build the 11-mile powerline extension took about 30 years. The 30 families now receiving service had their electric meters installed in early October.

“The project had been attempted so many times. It took everyone involved to finally make it happen on this eastern checkerboard land. And I think that is why it means so much to us,” Castillo said.

Located 13 miles east of Crownpoint, Littlewater’s land base is a patchwork of fee land, allotments, tribal trust and BLM property. Because power lines travel across all these different land statuses, securing rights-of-way to serve homes and families can be a complex and very time-consuming process, CDEC Member Services Manager Mac Juarez said.

“Efforts to provide service to those living in checkerboard areas can date back many years and several generations. But our mission, as a not-for-profit electric cooperative, has always been to extend service to those who would otherwise be unable to receive power,” Juarez said.
Chapter officials and CDEC employees caravanned from house to house on October 10 and 11, turning on power as Littlewater homeowners clapped and cheered with joy. Siblings who grew up without electricity and have since moved, returned home to moms and dads to witness the moment, including 43-year-old Jimmie Augustine, Jr.

“It took her all these years to get lights,” Augustine said, referring to his 73-year-old mother Dorothy. “I shed tears for her; and I thank everyone who did all the work and effort.”

The occasion was not without its somber moments, as community members and officials also reflected on deceased Littlewater elders who were among those that needed electricity when the rights-of-way process first began in the 80s. “The longest living elder in our community is 84-years-old. If you think about it, that’s a whole lifetime,” Castillo said.

Among the many entities and individuals involved in the Littlewater Chapter/White Ridge Power Line Project were rights-of-way agent Lucinda Henry (contracted by CDEC); Denise Copeland, archaeologist with the Navajo Nation Capital Projects Management Department; Navajo Nation Council Delegate Leonard Tsosie; and Steve Morales and Debbie Olivar with CDEC’s rights-of-way team.

The total cost of the project was $913,903 with $633,696 coming from UUFB, $78,207 from the chapter, and $202,000 from NNCIP general funds.

The Navajo Nation is planning on starting an air transportation venture that will provide air transportation for emergency medical transport, public safety, first responders, fire and rescue, and other types of situations where air support is needed. At a demonstration held on Friday, October 19, 2018, members of the Navajo Nation and representatives from Airbus, a key partner, showed an Airbus helicopter which would be similar to ones that the venture will be using.

The new venture is being funded by the Naat’aanii Development Fund and would work with IHS, Navajo Nation departments and enterprises, surrounding hospitals, and other partners who may need that type of service. The service would initially have 5 helicopters and 2 fixed wing aircraft. Since the venture will be a Navajo enterprise, the funds generated will be going back to the Navajo Nation and will help diversify the Nation’s economic investments. The company is looking to hire Navajo veterans, pilots, and nurses.

Following the tour of the Airbus helicopter, several people spoke at the luncheon, including Airbus representatives, Council Delegate Nathaniel Brown, and DPS Director Jesse Delmar and Police Chief Phillip Francisco. Also in attendance were representatives from the Office of the President/Vice-President and several Navajo Nation Divisions.
Canyon Diablo Tornado

BY M.C. Baldwin, Rural Addressing/GIS Coordinator, NNAA

Yesterday (10-21-18) around 2 pm DST, a tornado touched down about 2.5 miles northeast of exit 225 of I-40 on the Navajo Nation side in the Canyon Diablo area. The tornado may have been visible from Twin Arrows casino.

The tornado lasted for almost five minutes before it dissipated; this part of Navajo Nation is not as high as Flagstaff elevation and is usually warm and part of the Kaibab formation with rocky roads.

The last time my mother saw a tornado in this area was when she was a teenager and was sighted between Navajo Nation boundary and I-40 (around 1940s). The nearest road to this area is Route N-6910, that runs between I-40 and Route N-15 (highway from Leupp). Since this is a rural area, only the prairie dogs and jack rabbits were disturbed along with some reptiles and cattle.
What's New in the Redesigned Google Chrome?

Dan Grabham | 5 September 2018

Google Chrome has got a whole new look to celebrate both 10 years since the first version of the browser and 20 years since Google was incorporated as a company.

Chrome - which has around two billion users globally - is typically updated every six weeks, but it released a special update yesterday that introduces some new features.

Here’s what’s in the new update which includes a refreshed design, a revamped password manager and updated autofill. The Chrome search box (“Omnibox”) also gives you more information directly as you type.

A new look for Chrome
The biggest change, Chrome now features more rounded shapes, new icons and a new colour palette. The new browser has a simpler look. For those who open a lot of tabs, the look of the website icons have been made easier to see at-a-glance. On iOS, the toolbar has moved to the bottom of the screen to make it easier to use with the new non-home button iPhones. The look-and-feel is definitely lighter and bright colors stand out more.

Underneath the surface
Google has worked to improve Chrome’s startup time, latency, usage of memory, and usability with this update and the company says that further improvements are also planned.

Richer results from searches
The Omnibox will now show you answers directly in the address bar without having to open a new tab - so you can see the weather or a translated word without actually having to visit a page. Think autocomplete but totally powered up. The Omnibox will also enable you to search Google Drive in the near future.

Better at filling in stuff
Chrome now has a totally redesigned system for autofilling stuff like passwords, addresses, and credit card numbers - all saved to your Google Account of course. You can now also access this information from the toolbar. Like Safari, Chrome will now auto-generate passwords for you. Chrome will save it, and next time you sign in, it’ll be there across the platforms you use Chrome on.

Apparently the password manager is called Chrome Dino.

Switch to tab
If you search for a website you already have open (we’re looking at you, tab-crazy people who always complain about Chrome being slow) then Chrome will now give you the option to "Switch to tab".

New tab page improvements
You can now customize the new tab page so you're able to simply open a new tab and “Add shortcut.” And you can customize the background image, too.

ADMIN BUILDING #1 and #2 PARKING LOTS GET IMPROVEMENTS

Starting the week of October 15, 2018, Administration Building #1 and #2 parking lots were resurfaced and additional pavement was laid down north of Administration Building #1. The parking lot improvements will be a welcome change for employees and clients who come to the buildings, especially in inclement weather. Before, the north side of Administration Building #1 was just a plain dirt parking lot and would get muddy during rain or snow.

NAVAJO NATION RECEIVES FIRST SNOWFALL OF THE SEASON

On Tuesday, October 16, snow fell across Northern Arizona including higher elevations on the Navajo Nation. The Navajo Nation Council was in session and was interrupted at one point by a power outage.

Due to a few Pacific hurricanes moving into Mexico recently, the Navajo Nation has also been seeing plenty of rainfall. This is a welcome relief to several months of drought and a short monsoon season.

PRESIDENT BEGAYE SIGNS MOA TO REDUCE WASTE AND CREATE RECYCLED PAPER PRODUCTS

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M—President Russell Begaye signed an agreement between the Navajo Division of Economic Development (DED) and Presidio Environmental Southwest to develop an environmental complex consisting of a paper pulp mill on the Navajo Nation.

President Begaye formalized the memorandum of agreement (MOA) on Sept. 29, to initiate a study to find a viable location for the mill.

“By signing this MOA, we’re taking steps to address recycling on a national and global scale while also boosting our economy with an anticipated 200 to 400 jobs within the recycling plant,” President Begaye said.

“Once a location is determined, this project stands to create revenue through leases, taxes and fees.”

The paper pulp mill offers potential to support secondary markets for business development and housing.

Veterans Day 2018: Nov. 11

OCTOBER 17, 2018

Veterans Day originated as “Armistice Day” on Nov. 11, 1919, the first anniversary marking the end of World War I. Congress passed a resolution in 1926 for an annual observance, and Nov. 11 became a national holiday beginning in 1938. President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed legislation in 1954 to change the name to Veterans Day as a way to honor those who served in all American wars. The day honors military veterans with parades and speeches across the nation and a remembrance ceremony takes place at the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery in Arlington, Va. The ceremony honors and thanks all who served in the U.S. armed forces.

The following facts are made possible by the invaluable responses to the U.S. Census Bureau’s surveys. We appreciate the public’s cooperation as we continuously measure America’s people, places and economy.
